CONGRESSMAN J. K. TENER PRACTICALLY UNITED UPON AS LOGICAL CANDIDATE

PITTSBURG MORNING PAPER SAYS HE IS FAVORED ONE FOR GOVERNOR

District Attorney Blakeley, of Allegheny County, Not Considered Best Candidate by Republican Leaders.

That sentiment is rapidly crystalizing toward Congressman John K. Tener as the Republican nominee for Governor is shown by the trend of opinion at the National capital where prominent Republicans are discussing various strong candidates who can be depended upon to pull the party through to victory in the various States this fall. The Washington correspondent of the Pittsburgh Dispatch wires the following to his paper, which appears in this morning's issue:

"Representative John K. Tener of Charleroi is the man whom Senator Penrose has picked for the Republican nominee for Governor. I am certain this is right and I am equally certain that Senator Oliver will also be in line for Tener when the convention meets at Harrisburg."

This statement was made to the Dispatch correspondent today by a prominent organization politician from Pennsylvania, who has been in the game for more than a quarter of a century. He has always been identified with the organization and has enjoyed the confidence of Senators Quay and Penrose. For personal reasons, he would not permit the use of his name in connection with the above statement, but his words were as emphatic as quoted.

Continuing the politician mentioned: "At the recent conference between Penrose and Oliver at Atlantic City, the latter tried to impress upon his colleague the prominent qualifications of Blakeley as a candidate, but as far as he got in this direction was Penrose's agreement that Oliver should try out his man, see how the suggestion took with the rank and file, and the results speak for themselves. Penrose is just as strongly convinced now as ever that Tener is the logical man, from the organization standpoint, and Oliver is willing to go along if he finds Blakeley does not take well."

The impression voiced in this statement is shared by a large number of members of the Pennsylvania delegation in the House and they are reaching the conclusion that Tener is to be the candidate. Tener's friends point out that their man has just emerged from a hot primary contest with colors flying; that he can go into the convention with the solid delegation from his own county and that his personal popularity will prove a great factor in the gubernatorial contest. Tener himself is saying nothing.

He is taking an interest in the situation and is watching it without missing a single development. Those in Washington who are supporting him are doing it quietly and without ostentation, evidently not wishing to attract to their candidate the opposition of others who have ambitions to be Governor.

This story in the Dispatch created great enthusiasm in Charleroi this morning and the proposition to send a delegation to the State convention at Harrisburg from Charleroi week after next is receiving a bigger impetus than ever.

TESTIMONY IS TAKEN IN CASE FROM CHARLEROI

INJURED ON STREET CAR

A verdict of $10,000 damages against the Pittsburgh Railway company was returned at the county court yesterday in the suit of J. Scott McMeekin and Lulu McMeekin, his wife of Keown Station, Allegheny county, $4,000 for the husband and $6,000 for the wife.

The plaintiff seemed to have convinced the jury that injuries she sustained were of such a character that she will always be crippled and will always require a rolling chair to get about. It was alleged that the accident was due to the negligence of the employees of the company in starting the car before Mrs. McMeekin had entirely alighted from it.

OFFICIALS OF WATER COMPANY AND ATTORNEY AT SESSION OF COUNCIL

PROPERTY OWNERS QUESTION RIGHT OF CORPORATION TO OPEN UP STREET

Action on Matter Deferred for the Present-- New Garbage Hauler Furnishes Bond and Will Begin Work.

Superintendent H. E. Pollock of the Charleroi water company, the local manager, William Darby and the water company solicitor, Robert W. Irwin, Esq., were present last night at a meeting of the Charleroi council in regard to a dispute about the opening of Lincoln avenue, near Seventh street. The matter was brought to a head by a complaint of M. Wilson, who has six houses at that place, where the water company wanted to turn off the water. Mr. Wilson was present, and made a statement, in which he claimed that the street had been illegally opened up, and his water illegally turned off. A statement was made by the water company, but council decided that it would take no action, at least at present. The matter is more of a personal dispute, it is claimed, and council has no right to interfere, although they were asked by Mr. Wilson to take a hand.

Harry Perry, the newly elected garbage hauler, was present and stated that he had his bond ready, his bondsmen being W. F. Smith and W. C. Smith. He will begin work at once.

The street committee was empowered to investigate the matter of the request of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass company for the borough to extend their sewer to a portion of the company's works. The street committee was also instructed to investigate a matter brought up by John Hackett who owns property near the Washington Avenue Presbyterian church. Mr. Hackett asks to be remunerated for the use of hitching posts on his lot, or asks that the posts be removed. Arrangements will be made at once for the paving of McKean avenue where it has been thrown open between the boroughs of Charleroi and North Charleroi.

Adjournment was taken to meet at the call of the president.

One of the chief arguments in favor of paying by check is a guard against over payment.

Adds to the Cost.

While experts are searching for and rounding up the various causes that add to the cost of living, they should not omit to add a few million dollars in this State as wholly attributable to dogs, or rather the law that permits them to run at large. There are probably a million dogs running at large in this Commonwealth, and because of this pest several times some millions of dollars worth of mutton is cut off from the people. Dogs have nearly destroyed the sheep raising industry of the State.

In our own county there are at the present time claims filed at the court house for $8,200 for sheep damages by dogs. Because of the widespread slaughter of sheep by canines the State imposes a tax on dogs and this revenue goes to pay claims for sheep thus killed. The tax, however, is never sufficient to pay for the damages done, and as a result sheep raising has been abandoned in many sections of the State, and mutton which could be made the cheapest meat on the market, is now the most expensive.

It is stated that in the most of the European countries that dogs are not permitted to run at large, with a result that cases of hydrophobia are unknown. Sheep and small stock in those countries are safe, and the resources in that line can be developed without hindrance. So long as dogs are permitted to run at large in this State lamb chops will continue to be in the terrapin and champagne class of prices.

The Split Log Drag.

In order to show the farmers the advantage of having smooth, passable roads in the summer time, as well as to incidentally benefit its traffic, an expert engineer of the Pennsylvania Railroad company will deliver a lecture and give a demonstration of the Split Log Drag at Bentleyville next Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. It is of course to the Pennsylvania Railroad company's advantage to have good roads everywhere, as easy means of communication develops and originates traffic. For this reason it is showing the farmers how to have good roads with little effort during the summer time.

For lack of any effort to make them smooth, the dirt roads in this section are about as hard to travel in the dry period as in the maddy season. The split log drag is simply a split log that some back-woods farmer used for lack of modern equipment. It is found to be most effective in smoothing roads, and now an effort is being made to teach the trick to the farmers in the old settled districts. The essential, however, is simply to do something to keep the roads in order, and almost any kind of a smoothing apparatus will help dirt roads in summer time if it is only used.

One Law They Fear

The New York World is of the opinion that the Sherman Anti-Trust Law is all that is necessary to make it effective is to enforce it. It is not lack of law, but lack of enforcement that has permitted monopolistic evils to gain an ascendancy since the Sherman law was passed. The World says:

"Whenever the members of a monopolistic conspiracy come face to face with the Sherman Anti-Trust law they show unmistakable signs of fright. A mere threat of its enforcement throws prospective defendants into terror. Proceedings actually begun under it in any case make conservative business men turn pale and develop in Wall street all of the symptoms of panic."

"This law covers precisely the ground that its authors had in view. It forbids combinations and conspiracies in restraint of trade, and like any other criminal statute, provides severe penalties for those who disobey. Every principle of right and justice contained in it is derived from the common law. Even its language has been familiar to English-speaking people for generations."

"The fact that this law is held in such dread proves two things—one, that as a people we are in the habit of engaging in business practices long outlawed, and the other, that a measure wise and necessary has never been consistently enforced. If this law had been applied honestly and fearlessly from the first, the people would have escaped many wrongs and oppressions."

"Few questioned the justice of the Sherman act when it was passed. It was only after years of license had been extended to commercial and industrial rapacity that there grew up a 'business' element which found respectable support for the contention that the law is ruinously drastic and impossible of execution. 'The Sherman Anti-Trust law ought to be enforced to the letter. It is pettifogger-proof and monopoly-proof. It was honestly drawn. It needs only to be honestly enforced. There is no other remedy for the offense at which it was claimed.'"

ELECTRIC SPARKS

Many people seem to think that a newspaper man is merely a machine the sole purpose of which is to chronicle their unflinching virtues.

Poets flourish in Greene county for the reason that there the county papers aim to print all that is sent in, whether it contains the proper number of meters, or whether it is measured by the yard.

The Connellsville Courier says that while Centerville is to observe its centennial it is to have on display some whiskey made during the whiskey insurrection, but says that it is at a loss to know which whiskey insurrection is meant, inasmuch as there is one in this county every day or so.

If the Washington Observer wants to defeat Charley Bentley, it had better support him.

Charleroi will be the most popular place along the Pittsburgh Railways line and along the Pennsylvania Railroad company's Monongahela division when it gets those new cars and that new station. It will be so popular that the B. and O. railroad will want to move their tracks from Connellsville here and establish a terminal.

All Jack Johnston and Jim Jeffries have to do to keep up the biggest kind of a row is to hire a number of ordinarily up-to-date press agents to write them up, and have trouble with moving picture men.

The Washington Observer professes to have been "vindicated" by the result of the primary election Saturday. If it can get the candidates it supported to believe the same way, no one will have any kick coming.

Working It Out.

The following note was delivered to a schoolmistress recently:
"Dear Mum—I am sorry that Johnny won't be able to come to school today. He has gone with his father to act as timekeeper. The sum you gave Johnny last night was, 'If the road is one and a quarter miles long how long will it take a man to walk that distance twenty-six and a half times, his average rate of progress being three and three-quarter miles per hour?' Johnny ain't a man yet, so as dad's the only man in this house he had to go. They started at 4 o'clock this morning, and dad said he'd finish the sum in one day if he could manage it, though it would mean hard going. Dear mum, next time you want any information please make it 'woman,' then I can do the sum and dad can go to his work."—London Scraps.

The Talkative Barber.

"The talkativeness of barbers long has been the subject for puns and jokes," said a barber. "I had always fancied the matter one of recent origin until the other day. You know in my profession we have a great deal of spare time. Well, the other day I was sitting on the bench waiting for the shaves and hair cuts to come in and to while away the time was glancing through a copy of Plutarch's 'Archelaus.' Imagine my consternation when I happened on a line reading:

"A prating barber asked Archelaus how he would be trimmed. He answered, 'In silence.'"

"Well, that got me. I never knew they even had barbers that long ago. I always supposed the ancients let their whiskers grow and that they wore curly locks as long as their togas, but it seems that the barber is an ancient relic and that his talking proclivities are a matter of history. I'll have to give it to the humorists there."

"But, say," he whispered, "that manure girl over there has got us beat to a frazzle. I wonder if there's anything in Plutarch about her."—Kansas City Star.

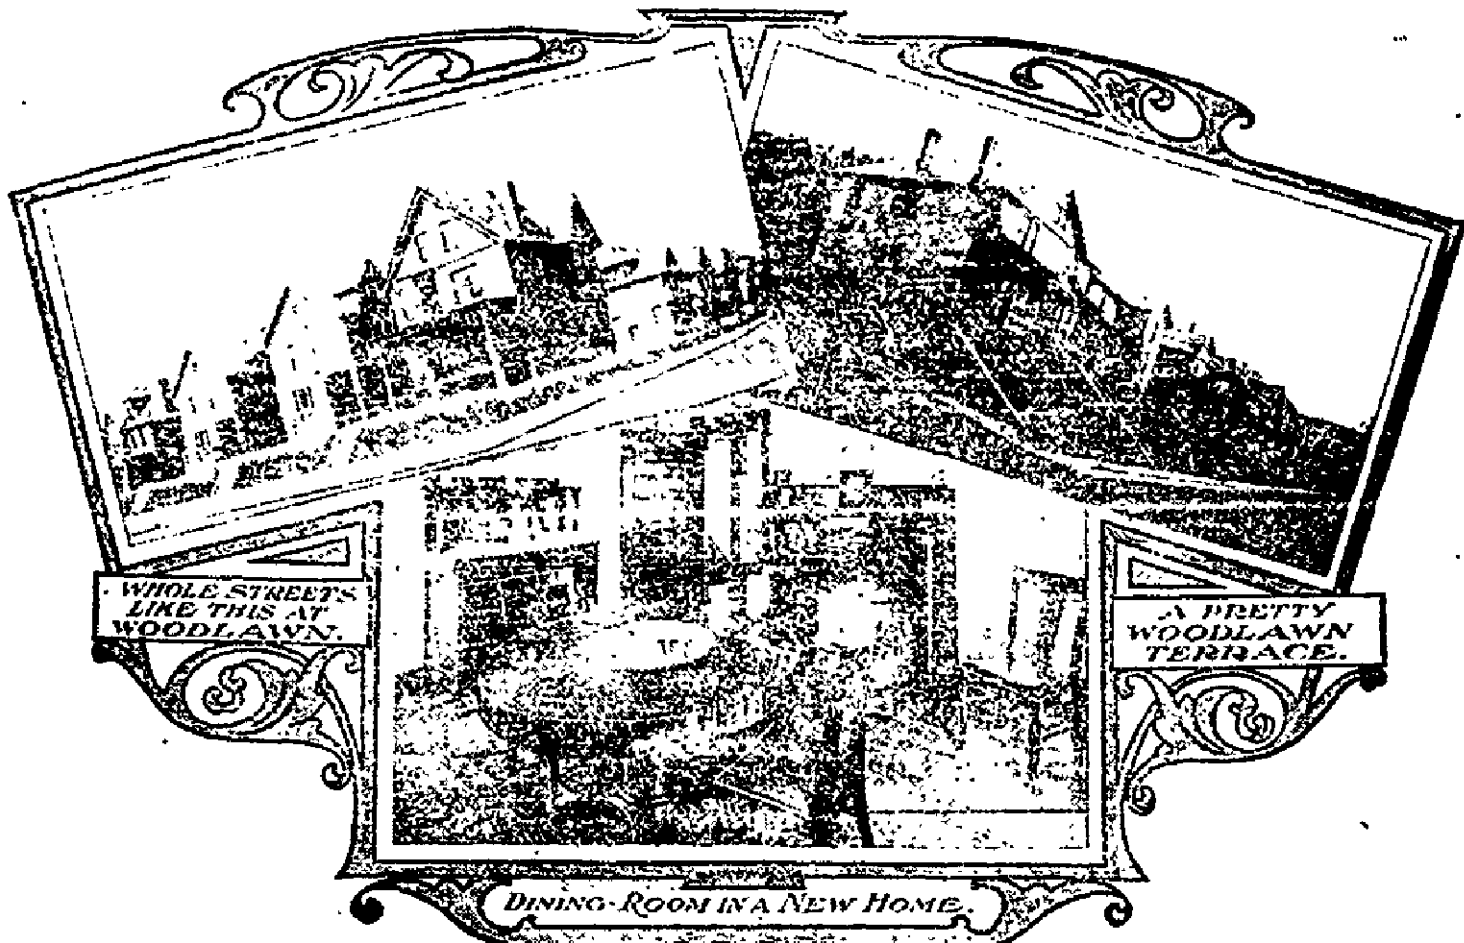

The Sunny Side of Superstition.

That there is anything genial, cheering or therapeutically valuable about superstition may seem a tall statement. The adjective generally associated with it is "dark." On the contrary, there is something very brightening about a four leaf clover. Who is not a little more of an optimist for picking up a horseshoe? What lonely farmer's wife, stormbound on a winter afternoon, with unwelcome leisure on her hands, but feels a little quickening of the pulse as she drops her scissors and beholds them sticking in the carpet or discovers that she has laid an extra place at the table? Company signs are the commonest and welcomed of all superstitions. The scissors, the needle, the dishcloth, the fork, the Saturday sneeze, all incite hospitality and reward it by an unexpected visitor. If the needle slants as it stands up in the crack of the floor it foretells a gentleman. Run, young daughters of the house, and put a blue bow in your hair!—Atlantic Monthly.

Reptiles' Eggs.

Reptiles' eggs are not very attractive objects. In the case of crocodiles and many kinds of tortoises they are pale colored and white and resemble those of birds in shape. But the egg of the gopher tortoise is remarkable for its complete roundness. It might well be mistaken for a golf ball. Many snakes' eggs are soft skinned, brown as to color and look for all the world like a number of new potatoes.

Jones and Laughlin Coal Co. Adding Suburb to Pittsburgh

Woodlawn, the new city which is being built by the Jones and Laughlin Steel company adjoining the new furnaces, steel mills, rod, wire and the tin mills of their Aliquippa department, will add a beautiful new suburb to Pittsburgh, one which the greater city will be proud of. It is estimated that within a year its population will be 10,000. There is no more active place in the Pittsburgh district today than Woodlawn, with several thousand men of the building and contracting trades erecting 500 pretty homes and grading, paving sewerage and laying conduits in the streets of the new city, constructing office buildings, stores and schools and working as a unit to the completion of this wonderful new community which is springing up in the wooded hills and romantic valleys 20 miles down the Ohio.

Work was commenced on Woodlawn last summer and some of the houses were completed in time for winter occupancy by Jones and Laughlin employees, while others are being taken almost as fast as they are finished. The houses being put up by the company contain from 6 to 10 rooms and bath are constructed of brick, cement or frame or combinations of these materials, and are in every respect most attractive and convenient.

Woodlawn will have several schools and a beautiful high school, a five story department store, other stores, banks, drug stores, churches, physicians' offices, and all classes of enterprises.

There is already a police department and paid fire department at Woodlawn and a complete electric police paid fire call system. There is also electric light for streets and homes, gas for cooking and light, and a fine system of pure filtered water from artesian wells.

One of the features of Woodlawn will be a beautiful club house in a pretty grove in the heart of the city. It will be 100x162 feet in size, two stories high and will contain bowling alleys, billiard and pool room, swimming pool, gymnasium with dressing rooms and lockers, and fine hardwood dancing floor 70x125 feet with a stage at one end so that it can be converted into a theatre or lecture hall. There will also be a ladies' reception room, dining room, smoking room, card room and kitchens, as well as class rooms for students in industrial subjects.

The high school is nearly completed and will contain 10 rooms, offices for the superintendent and auditorium for school entertainments.

Any of the houses erected at Woodlawn will be rented or sold only to employees of the Jones and Laughlin Steel company. The better class of iron and steel workers is already being attracted to the new community.

THE MIRROR TONIC.

When a Peek Into a Hand Glass May Help a Patient.

The looking glass, whether a plus or a minus quantity, plays a more important part in the sickroom than most nurses and physicians give it credit for.

"All things considered, I think it a good plan to give a sick person a chance to look at himself occasionally," said a prominent doctor recently. "Of course the indulgence must be granted with discretion. If a patient is really looking seedy a turn at the looking glass is equivalent to signing his death warrant, but if taken at a time when braced up by some stimulant or a natural ebullition of vital force a few minutes of communion with his own visage begets any tonic I can prescribe. It thrills the patient with new hope. It makes him feel that he isn't quite so far gone as he has thought and that possibly a fight for life is, after all, worth while. Being thus sensitive, a persistent withholding of a mirror convinces the patient that he must be too horrible for contemplation, and he promptly decides that the best thing for him to do is to give up the ghost and get out of the way."

"That is one of the mistakes hospitals were apt to make up to a few years ago. When I was a young fellow getting my first practice after graduation I served on the staff of several hospitals, and in all, especially in the free wards, those aids to vanity were strictly forbidden."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE TIPPING HABIT.

It Was Worse in the Eighteenth Century Than It Is Now.

The tipping habit is bad enough now,adays, but in the eighteenth century it was a greater evil than it is at the present time. A writer in the Cornhill Magazine tells some stories to illustrate the old condition of things.

In Edinburgh in 1700 tipping became such an evil that the Society of Clerks enacted that all servants should be forbidden to take tips and members be forbidden to give them. This example was followed by other clubs and societies. Today there is a rule in most clubs against feeling the servants.

An eccentric Irish gentleman, Lord Taaffe, used to attend his guests to the door, and if they offered any money to the servants who were lined up with the guests' baggage the host would say, "If you give, give it me, for it was I that did buy the dinner."

A well known colonel while sitting at dinner inquired the names of the host's servants. "For," said he, "I cannot pay them for such a good dinner, but I should like to remember them in my will."

Another eccentric gentleman after patiently redeeming his hat, sword, cane and cloak to the very bottom of his purse turned to the two remaining servants who were waiting obsequiously, each with a glove, and said affably: "Keep those. I will not trouble to buy them back. They are old and not worth a shilling."

A Pretty Lorain Girl

There's a pretty young girl at Lorain wears a gown with a very long train, and a few nights ago wished to go to a show, and she wore that swelled gown in the rain. As she stepped from her cab to the theatre, some friends stopped a moment to greet her; and it wasn't the show, but Chi-Namel you know, that they talked of clear into that theatre. Chi-Namel produces the most beautiful hardwood floor effects over any floor. You can save it in any color. Amateurs can apply it as successfully as any professional wood finish. Let us tell you more about it at the store. Sold by T. P. Grant. 57

Party's Fate on One Vote.

Instances are common enough in elections when a single vote turns the scale, but for that vote to decide not only the fate of a candidate, but of a party as well, is rare. Yet a majority of one in parliament, which may logically depend on a majority of one in the country, has worked some of the most momentous results possible. The classical example is the act of union of 1709, certainly among the largest, most important and most remarkable changes ever accomplished by a legislative body. One hundred and six voted for it and 105 against. Then a majority of one carried the great reform bill in 1832.

Majorities only a little bigger have again and again been responsible for far-reaching consequences. A majority of five threw out the Melbourne government in 1859. By the same figure Lord John Russell's government was defeated in 1866. Gladstone went out of office in 1873 because he lacked three votes, and the public education act, one of the most important ever passed, was placed on the statute book by a majority of two.—London Chronicle.

Wild Dogs of Asia.

The whole tribe of wild dogs, which in closely allied forms are to be found in the wildest jungles and woods of Asia, from the Himalayas to Ceylon and from China to the Taurus—unless the "golden wolves" of the Roman empire are now extinct in the forests of Asia Minor—show an individual and corporate courage which entitles them to a high place among the most daring of wild creatures. The "red dogs," to give them their most characteristic name, are neither large in size nor do they assemble in large packs. Those which have been from time to time measured and described seem to average some three feet in length from the nose to the root of the tail. The pack seldom numbers more than nine or ten, yet there is sufficient evidence that they are willing and able to destroy any creature that inhabits the jungle, except the adult elephant and perhaps the rhinoceros, creatures whose great size and leathery hide make them almost invulnerable to such enemies as dogs.—London Spectator.

London's Big Ben.

Why is the large bell in the tower of the house of parliament in London called Big Ben? The average Londoner himself seems to have no idea how it got its name. When the building was designed Sir Benjamin Hall had a great deal to do with carrying out the plans of the architects, being high commissioner of public works, and his coworkers associated the fact that to him the city of London was largely indebted. So when the question came up in parliament as to the name of the enormous bell that was to be hung in the tower a member shouted, "Why not call it Big Ben?" This suggestion was received with much applause as well as with roars of laughter, for Sir Benjamin was an enormous man, both in height and girth, and had often been called Big Ben. From that day on the bell whose peal every Londoner knows has been known only as Big Ben.—Harper's Weekly.

A Custom of the Balkans.

He or she who enters a house for the first time is supposed in the Balkan countries to bring it good or bad luck for the whole twelvemonth. This belief gives rise to a curious observance. The visitor before crossing the threshold picks up a stone (token of strength) or a green twig (token of health and fruitfulness) and lays it on the hearth. He also brings with him some grains of salt, which he casts into the flames and then, squatting by the fireside, wishes his hosts "a prosperous year, a plentiful crop and many blessings." Then as the grains of salt burst and crackle in the fire he utters the following quaint formula: "As I am sitting, even so may sit the hen and warm the eggs. As this salt splits, even so may split the eggs of the clucking hen and the chickens come forth."

BUZZARDS' NESTS.

The Same Ones Are Rarely Used Two Consecutive Seasons.

The flight of the buzzard is as well nigh perfection as is possible to find. In fact, he might be called the most perfect aeroplane in existence. To see him soaring between the bare hills, with a vast green fertile valley below him and with the spring sun lighting up his brown plumage as he slowly sails around with outspread pinions, is a sight never to be forgotten.

The buzzard usually chooses a ledge on a cliff for an eyrie, but in certain parts of Wales there are a few well used nests in trees, and as they are generally used by some bird of prey each season they grow to an enormous size. The buzzard does not, as a rule, use the same nest two consecutive seasons, but returns to it the third, and after that allows another season to elapse before occupying it again.

Two nests are often constructed in one dingle, and an amusing incident happened a few years ago in one of these places. The hen laid one egg in each nest, and, as it was quite impossible for her to sit on both at once, we did her a good turn by placing one of these eggs in the nest with its companion. The result of our kindness was that a collector passed by about two hours afterward and put both eggs in his collecting box.

When I thought the matter over I came to the conclusion that that old buzzard was not half such a fool as we took her to be, and if we had left the eggs as we found them the bird might have had a chance of rearing one youngster.—Country Life.

A STRANGE REVERSAL.

Napoleon and Wellington and an Exchange of Residences.

In the days before the Suez canal was opened to the world St. Helena was a frequent port of call for British vessels bound to and from India and the far east. This custom, explains Harper's Weekly, was caused by the need of obtaining supplies for the long voyage, and it was therefore for this reason that the ship which on one occasion bore the Duke of Wellington, then Sir Arthur Wellesley, returning to England from India, touched at the island. The great commander spent one night at Jamestown at the house of a Mr. Balcom.

Ten years later Napoleon Bonaparte landed to begin his six years of exile and was assigned to the same room that his conqueror at Waterloo had occupied. This coincidence came to the knowledge of the duke at Paris during its occupation by the allied forces, and he dispatched the following letter to the British officer then in command at St. Helena:

"I am very much obliged to you for Mr. Simpson's book, which I will read when I have a moment's leisure. I am glad you have taken the command at St. Helena, upon which I congratulate you. You may tell 'Bony' that I find his apartments at the Elysee Bourbon very convenient and that I hope he likes mine at Mr. Balcom's. It is a droll enough sequel to the affairs of Europe that we should change places of residence."

His Quick Wit Saved Him.

An ancestor of the great Tolstoy was an officer in the Russian army and a great mimic. One day he was impersonating the Emperor Paul to a group of his friends when Paul himself entered and for some moments looked on unperceived at the antics of the young man. Tolstoy finally turned and, beholding the emperor, bowed his head and was silent.

"Go on, sir," said Paul. "Continue the performance."

The young man hesitated a moment, and then, folding his arms and imitating every gesture and intonation of his sovereign, he said:

"Tolstoy, you deserve to be degraded, but I remember the thoughtlessness of youth, and you are pardoned."

The czar smiled slightly at this speech.

"Well, be it so," he said.

Willing to Pay.

When the British square at the battle of Abu Klea, in the Nubian desert, was penetrated by the dervishes one of them attempted to spear a gunner who was in the act of ramming home a charge. The Briton brained the Sudanese, but the rammer head split on the man's hard skull. Next day the gunner was sent for. Mistaking the reason and knowing from experience that soldiers are charged for government property which they break, he led off: "Please, sir, I'm very sorry I broke the rammer, but I never thought the fellow's head could be so hard. I'll pay for the rammer so as to bear no more of the case."

Obedient.

"Well, my little man," queried the minister who was making a call, "do you always do as your mamma tells you?"

"You bet I do," answered the precocious five-year-old, "and so does papa."

A King's Trick.

King Gustavus III. of Sweden had been frequently invited to the little court of Schwerin. In 1788 he paid a visit to Germany, and as soon as the Duchess of Mecklenburg heard of his approach she prepared fete in his honor. But Gustavus, who disdained the petty courts of the small rulers, sent two of his attendants—a page named Peyron and Desvignes, a valet who had formerly been an actor—to be entertained by the duchess. The two personated the king and his minister, Baron Sparre, and sustained the characters throughout. They accepted of their due all the homage meant for their master, danced with the Mecklenburg ladies who were presented to them, and Peyron went so far as to ask one of the ladies for her portrait. Meantime Gustavus was enjoying himself elsewhere in secret.

Richmond Castle.

Richmond castle was originally one of the strongest of Norman keeps. It was probably founded by Alan Rufus, one of the sons of the Duke of Brittany, who took a prominent part in the suppression of the Saxons. At a later age the castle passed into the possession of Edmund Tudor, who married Margaret Beaufort and became the father of Henry VII. Henry was born Earl of Richmond, and he bestowed the title upon the magnificent palace which when King of England he built upon the banks of the Thames. Thus the Richmond beloved of cockneys has a comparatively modern origin. The curfew, by the way, is still rung from the tower of Richmond castle at 6 a. m. and 8 p. m., a custom "that has continued ever since the time of William the Conqueror."—London Globe.

Game in Manchuria.

The long haired tiger is found throughout Manchuria wherever there is hilly country, but is never found on the plains. It is extremely difficult to bag and is by no means numerous. All, however, are scarce and hard to bag, with the exception of roe deer and pig.—London Field.

MATHEMATICS.

Used to Locate an Aerolite That No One Had Ever Seen.

Arithmetic, algebra and trigonometry are not romantic, but they may accomplish things which greatly impress the imagination. By means of them a professor at Yale university found a few years ago an aerolite that no one had ever seen.

It appears that a photographer in Ansonia, Conn., was occupied in taking pictures by the aid of a telescope of a comet which was invisible to the naked eye. When his negatives were developed one of them revealed the tail of a meteor. It was too small an object to attract the attention of the unaided eyes, but its line on the photograph indicated that it must have come to the earth.

The picture was shown to an astronomical professor at Yale. Ascertaining the point of observation and reckoning with the aid of the data which the photograph itself supplied, he made a calculation which proved that the meteor must have fallen in the neighborhood of a reservoir some two miles north of Danbury, Conn. There the aerolite was found in the very place indicated by the calculation. It was oval in form, measured fifteen and a half inches in length, seven and a half inches in diameter and weighed twenty-six pounds. It was sent to the museum of Yale university, where it serves not only as an illustration of the nature of the fragment bodies of the skies, but testifies also to the wonders of calculation which it is possible for mathematical science to accomplish.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

DROPPING ASLEEP.

The Way Mother Nature Charms Away Our Consciousness.

How do we go to sleep? How does Mother Nature charm away our consciousness? First of all she throws her spell on those centers of our bodies that preside over the muscular system, causing one group of muscles after another gradually to collapse. Thereafter various powers of mind succumb in regular order. First we lose attention and judgment, then memory goes, and imagination wanders away in reveries of its own. Ideas of time and space cease to control thought as gentle sleep, the nurse of our life, draws nearer. Then comes the turn of the special senses, beginning with sight. Eyelids close, and eyeballs turn upward and inward, as if to shut out all light, the pupils contracting more and more as slumber steals over us.

The turn of the ears comes; the power of hearing fades away. The heart beats and breath is drawn more and more slowly. The heart beats from ten to twenty times less frequently each minute, or 5,000 times less during the night, while breathing is not only slower but much more shallow than during waking hours. Temperature falls by perhaps 2 degrees, and the body loses three times less heat than when awake. And so at last sleep covers a man all over—sleep that shuts up sorrow's eye.—London Express.

Enthusiasm.

The organist sent a little boy to inquire of the minister what the first hymn would be. "Tell her," said the minister. "I would like 'Carol, Brothers, Carol.'"

The little boy thought he said "Howl, Brothers, Howl," and told the organist that the minister's selection was "Yell, Brothers, Yell."—New York Times.

PITTSBURG MORNING PAPER SAYS HE IS FAVORED ONE FOR GOVERNOR

District Attorney Blakeley, of Allegheny County, Not Considered Best Candidate by Republican Leaders.

That sentiment is rapidly crystallizing toward Congressman John K. Tener as the Republican nominee for Governor is shown by the trend of opinion at the National capital where prominent Republicans are discussing various strong candidates who can be depended upon to pull the party through to victory in the various States this fall. The Washington correspondent of the Pittsburg Dispatch wires the following to his paper, which appears in this morning's issue:

"Representative John K. Tener of Charleroi is the man whom Senator Penrose has picked for the Republican nominee for Governor. I am certain this is right and I am equally certain that Senator Oliver will also be in line for Tener when the convention meets at Harrisburg."

This statement was made to the Dispatch correspondent today by a prominent organization politician from Pennsylvania, who has been in the game for more than a quarter of a century. He has always been identified with the organization and has enjoyed the confidence of Senators Quay and Penrose. For personal reasons, he would not permit the use of his name in connection with the above statement, but his words were as emphatic as quoted.

Continuing the politician mentioned: "At the recent conference between Penrose and Oliver at Atlantic City, the latter tried to impress upon his colleague the prominent qualifications of Blakeley as a candidate, but as far as he got in this direction was Penrose's agreement that Oliver should try out his man, see how the suggestion took with the rank and file, and the results speak for themselves. Penrose is just as strongly convinced now as ever that Tener is the logical man, from the organization standpoint, and Oliver is willing to go along if he finds Blakeley does not take well."

The impression voiced in this statement is shared by a large number of members of the Pennsylvania delegation in the House and they are reaching the conclusion that Tener is to be the candidate. Tener's friends point out that their man has just emerged from a hot primary contest with colors flying; that he can go into the convention with the solid delegation from his own county and that his personal popularity will prove a great factor in the gubernatorial contest. Tener himself is saying nothing.

He is taking an interest in the situation and is watching it without missing a single development. Those in Washington who are supporting him are doing it quietly and without ostentation, evidently not wishing to attract to their candidate the opposition of others who have ambitions to be Governor.

This story in the Dispatch created great enthusiasm in Charleroi this morning and the proposition to send a delegation to the State convention at Harrisburg from Charleroi week after next is receiving a bigger impetus than ever.

TESTIMONY IS TAKEN IN CASE FROM CHARLEROI

INJURED ON STREET CAR

A verdict of $10,000 damages against the Pittsburg Railway company was returned at the county court yesterday in the suit of J. Scott McMeekin and Lulu McMeekin, his wife of Keown Station, Allegheny county, $4,000 for the husband and $6,000 for the wife.

The plaintiff seemed to have convinced the jury that injuries sustained were of such a character that she will always be crippled and will always require a rolling chair to get about. It was alleged that the accident was due to the negligence of the employees of the company in starting the car before Mrs. McMeekin had entirely alighted from it.

OFFICIALS OF WATER COMPANY AND ATTORNEY AT SESSION OF COUNCIL

PROPERTY OWNERS QUESTION RIGHT OF CORPORATION TO OPEN UP STREET

Action on Matter Deferred for the Present—New Garbage Hauler Furnishes Bond and Will Begin Work.

Superintendent H. E. Pollock of the Charleroi water company, the local manager, William Darby and the water company solicitor, Robert W. Irwin, Esq., were present last night at a meeting of the Charleroi council in regard to a dispute about the opening of Lincoln avenue, near Seventh street. The matter was brought to a head by a complaint of M. Wilson, who has six houses at that place, where the water company wanted to turn off the water. Mr. Wilson was present, and made a statement, in which he claimed that the street had been illegally opened up, and his water illegally turned off. A statement was made by the water company, but council decided that it would take no action, at least at present. The matter is more of a personal dispute, it is claimed, and council has no right to interfere, although they were asked by Mr. Wilson to take a hand.

Harry Perry, the newly elected garbage hauler, was present and stated that he had his bond ready, his bondsmen being W. F. Smith and W. C. Smith. He will begin work at once. The street committee was empowered to investigate the matter of the request of the Pittsburg Plate Glass company for the borough to extend their sewer to a portion of the company's works. The street committee was also instructed to investigate a matter brought up by John Hackett who owns property near the Washington Avenue Presbyterian church. Mr. Hackett asks to be remunerated for the use of hitching posts on his lot, or asks that the posts be removed. Arrangements will be made at once for the paving of McKean avenue where it has been thrown open between the boroughs of Charleroi and North Charleroi. Adjournment was taken to meet at the call of the president.

W. A. PRESBYTERIANS AND METHODISTS PLAY TIE GAME

The Washington Avenue Presbyterians and the Methodists played a tie game last night, the score at the finality being 7 to 7. All things being considered the game was about as the score showed, equal. The Washington Avenues got all but one of their tallies in the first inning on five hits and six errors. They got their final in the sixth through a base on balls and two errors. The Methodists corralled their first in the first two in the second, on a single and a homer, and four in the sixth on two singles, a number of errors and fielder's choices. The score:

One of the chief arguments in favor of paying by check is a guard against over payment.

Adds to the Cost.

While experts are searching for and rounding up the various causes that add to the cost of living, they should not omit to add a few million dollars in this State as wholly attributable to dogs, or rather the law that permits them to run at large.
There are probably a million dogs running at large in this Commonwealth, and because of this pest several times some millions of dollars worth of mutton is cut off from the people. Dogs have nearly destroyed the sheep raising industry of the State.

In our own county there are at the present time claims filed at the court house for $8,200 for sheep damages by dogs. Because of the widespread slaughter of sheep by canines the State imposes a tax on dogs and this revenue goes to pay claims for sheep thus killed. The tax, however, is never sufficient to pay for the damages done, and as a result sheep raising has been abandoned in many sections of the State, and mutton which could be made the cheapest meat on the market, is now the most expensive.

It is stated that in the most of the European countries that dogs are not permitted to run at large, with a result that cases of hydrophobia are unknown. Sheep and small stock in those countries are safe, and the resources in that line can be developed without hindrance. So long as dogs are permitted to run at large in this State lamb chops will continue to be in the terrapin and champagne class of prices.

The Split Log Drag.

In order to show the farmers the advantage of having smooth, passable roads in the summer time, as well as to incidentally benefit its traffic, an expert engineer of the Pennsylvania Railroad company will deliver a lecture and give a demonstration of the Split Log Drag at Bentleyville next Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. It is of course to the Pennsylvania Railroad company's advantage to have good roads everywhere, as easy means of communication develops and originates traffic. For this reason it is showing the farmers how to have good roads with little effort during the summer time.

For lack of any effort to make them smooth, the dirt roads in this section are about as hard to travel in the dry period as in the muddy season.
The split log drag is simply a split log that some back-woods farmer used for lack of modern equipment. It is found to be most effective in smoothing roads, and now an effort is being made to teach the trick to the farmers in the old settled districts. The essential, however, is simply to do something to keep the roads in order, and almost any kind of a smoothing apparatus will help dirt roads in summer time if it is only used.

One Law They Fear

The New York World is of the opinion that the Sherman Anti-Trust Law is all that its name implies, and all that is necessary to make it effective is to enforce it. It is not lack of law, but lack of enforcement that has permitted monopolistic evils to gain an ascendancy since the Sherman law was passed. The World says:

"Whenever the members of a monopolistic conspiracy come face to face with the Sherman Anti-Trust law they show unmistakable signs of fright. A mere threat of its enforcement throws prospective defendants into terror. Proceedings actually begun under it in any case make conservative business men turn pale and develop in Wall street all of the symptoms of panic.

"This law covers precisely the ground that its authors had in view.
It forbids combinations and conspiracies in restraint of trade, and like any other criminal statute, provides severe penalties for those who disobey.
Every principle of right and justice contained in it is derived from the common law. Even its language has been familiar to English-speaking people for generations.

"The fact that this law is held in such dread proves two things—one, that as a people we are in the habit of engaging in business practices long outlawed, and the other, that a measure wise and necessary has never been consistently enforced. If this law had been applied honestly and fearlessly from the first, the people would have escaped many wrongs and oppressions.

"Few questioned the justice of the Sherman act when it was passed. It was only after years of license had been extended to commercial and industrial rapacity that there grew up a 'business' element which found respectable support for the contention that the law is ruinously drastic and impossible of execution.

"The Sherman Anti-Trust law ought to be enforced to the letter.
It is pettifogger-proof and monopoly-proof. It was honestly drawn. It needs only to be honestly enforced.
There is no other remedy for the offense at which it was claimed."

ELECTRIC SPARKS

Many people seem to think that a newspaper man is merely a machine the sole purpose of which is to chronicle their unflinching virtues.

Poets flourish in Greene county for the reason that there the county papers aim to print all that is sent in, whether it contains the proper number of meters, or whether it is measured by the yard.

The Connellsville Courier says that while Centerville is to observe its centennial it is to have on display some whisky made during the whisky insurrection, but says that it is at a loss to know which whisky insurrection is meant, inasmuch as there is one in this county every day or so.

If the Washington Observer wants to defeat Charley Bentley, it had better support him.

Charleroi will be the most popular place along the Pittsburgh Railways line and along the Pennsylvania Railroad company's Monongahela division when it gets those new cars and that new station. It will be so popular that the B. and O. railroad will want to move their tracks from Connellsville here and establish a terminal.

All Jack Johnston and Jim Jeffries have to do to keep up the biggest kind of a row is to hire a number of ordinarily up-to-date press agents to write them up, and have trouble with moving picture men.

The Washington Observer professes to have been "vindicated" by the result of the primary election Saturday. If it can get the candidates it supported to believe the same way, no one will have any kick coming.

Working It Out.

The following note was delivered to a schoolmistress recently:

"Dear Mum—I am sorry that Johnny won't be able to come to school today. He has gone with his father to act as timekeeper. The sum you gave Johnny last night was, 'if the road is one and a quarter miles long how long will it take a man to walk that distance twenty-six and a half times, his average rate of progress being three and three-quarter miles per hour?' Johnny ain't a man yet, so as dad's the only man in this house he had to go. They started at 4 o'clock this morning, and dad said he'd finish the sum in one day if he could manage it.
though it would mean hard going.
Dear mum, next time you want any information please make it 'woman.'
then I can do the sum and dad can go to his work."—London Scraps.

The Talkative Barber.

"The talkativeness of barbers long has been the subject for puns and jokes," said a barber. "I had always fancied the matter one of recent origin until the other day. You know in my profession we have a great deal of spare time. Well, the other day I was sitting on the bench waiting for the shaves and hair cuts to come in and to while away the time was glancing through a copy of Plutarch's 'Archelaus.' Imagine my consternation when I happened on a fine reading:

"A prating barber asked Archelaus how he would be trimmed. He answered, 'In silence.'"

"Well, that got me. I never knew they even had barbers that long ago.
I always supposed the ancients let their whiskers grow and that they wore curly locks as long as their togas, but it seems that the barber is an ancient relic and that his talking propensities are a matter of history.
I'll have to give it to the humorists there.

"But, say," he whispered, "that manicure girl over there has got us beat to a frazzle. I wonder if there's anything in Plutarch about her."—Kansas City Star.

The Sunny Side of Superstition.

That there is anything genial, cheering or therapeutically valuable about superstition may seem a tall statement. The adjective generally associated with it is "dark." On the contrary, there is something very brightening about a four leaf clover. Who is not a little more of an optimist for picking up a horseshoe? What lonely farmer's wife, stormbound on a winter afternoon, with unwelcome leisure on her hands, but feels a little quickening of the pulse as she drops her scissors and beholds them sticking up in the carpet or discovers that she has laid an extra place at the table?
Company signs are the commonest and welcomed of all superstitions. The scissors, the needle, the dishcloth, the fork, the Saturday sneeze, all inculcate hospitality and reward it by an unexpected visitor. If the needle slits as it stands up in the crack of the floor it foretells a gentleman. Run, young daughters of the house, and put a blue bow in your hair!—Atlantic Monthly.

Reptiles' Eggs.

Reptiles' eggs are not very attractive objects. In the case of crocodiles and many kinds of tortoises they are pale colored or white and resemble those of birds in shape. But the egg of the gopher tortoise is remarkable for its complete roundness. It might well be mistaken for a golf ball. Many snakes' eggs are soft skinned, brown as to color and look for all the world like a number of new potatoes

Jones and Laughlin Coal Co. Adding Suburb to Pittsburg

Woodlawn, the new city which is being built by the Jones and Laughlin Steel company adjoining the new furnaces, steel mills, rod, wire and the tin mills of their Aliquippa department, will add a beautiful new suburb to Pittsburg, one which the greater city will be proud of. It is estimated that within a year its population will be 10,000. There is no more active place in the Pittsburg district today than Woodlawn, with several thousand men of the building and contracting trades erecting 500 pretty homes and grading, paving sewerage and laying conduits in the streets of the new city, constructing office buildings, stores and schools and working as a unit to the completion of this wonderful new community which is springing up in the wooded hills and romantic valleys 20 miles down the Ohio.

Work was commenced on Woodlawn last summer and some of the houses were completed in time for winter occupancy by Jones and Laughlin employees, while others are being taken almost as fast as they are finished.

The houses being put up by the company contain from 6 to 10 rooms and bath are constructed of brick, cement or frame or combinations of these materials, and are in every respect most attractive and convenient.

Woodlawn will have several schools and a beautiful high school, a five story department store, other stores, banks, drug stores, churches, physicians' offices, and all classes of enterprises.

There is already a police department and paid fire department at Woodlawn and a complete electric police paid fire call system. There is also electric light for streets and homes, gas for cooking and light, and a fine system of pure filtered water from artesian wells.

One of the features of Woodlawn will be a beautiful club house in a pretty grove in the heart of the city.

It will be 100x162 feet in size, two stories high and will contain bowling alleys, billiard and pool room, swimming pool, gymnasium with dressing rooms and lockers, and fine hardwood dancing floor 70x125 feet with a stage at one end so that it can be converted into a theatre or lecture hall. There will also be a ladies' reception room, dining room, smoking room, card room and kitchens, as well as class rooms for students in industrial subjects.

The high school is nearly completed and will contain 10 rooms, offices for the superintendent and auditorium for school entertainments.

Any of the houses erected at Woodlawn will be rented or sold only to employees of the Jones and Laughlin Steel company. The better class of iron and steel workers is already being attracted to the new community.

THE MIRROR TONIC.

When a Peek Into a Hand Glass May Help a Patient.

The looking glass, whether a plus or a minus quantity, plays a more important part in the sickroom than most nurses and physicians give it credit for.

"All things considered, I think it a good plan to give a sick person a chance to look at himself occasionally," said a prominent doctor recently.
"Of course the indulgence must be granted with discretion. If a patient is really looking seedy a turn at the looking glass is equivalent to signing his death warrant, but if taken at a time when braced up by some stimulant or a natural ebullition of vital force a few minutes of communion with his own visage bears any tonic I can prescribe. It thrills the patient with new hope. It makes him feel that he isn't quite so far gone as he has thought and that possibly a fight for life is, after all, worth while. Being thus sensitive, a persistent withholding of a mirror convinces the patient that he must be too horrible for contemplation, and he promptly decides that the best thing for him to do is to give up the ghost and get out of the way.

"That is one of the mistakes hospitals were apt to make up to a few years ago. When I was a young fellow getting my first practice after graduation I served on the staff of several hospitals, and in all, especially in the free wards, those aids to vanity were strictly forbidden."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE TIPPING HABIT.

It Was Worse in the Eighteenth Century Than It Is Now.

The tipping habit is bad enough nowadays, but in the eighteenth century it was a greater evil than it is at the present time. A writer in the Cornhill Magazine tells some stories to illustrate the old condition of things.

In Edinburgh in 1760 tipping became such an evil that the Society of Clerks enacted that all servants should be forbidden to take tips and members be forbidden to give them. This example was followed by other clubs and societies. Today there is a rule in most clubs against feeding the servants.

An eccentric Irish gentleman, Lord Taaffe, used to attend his guests to the door, and if they offered any money to the servants who were lined up with the guests' baggage the host would say, "If you give, give it me, for it was I that did buy the dinner."

A well known colonial while sitting at dinner inquired the names of the host's servants. "For," said he, "I cannot pay them for such a good dinner, but I should like to remember them in my will."

Another eccentric gentleman after patiently redeeming his hat, sword, cane, and cloak to the very bottom of his purse turned to the two remaining servants who were waiting obse-

BUZZARDS' NESTS.

The Same Ones Are Rarely Used Two Consecutive Seasons.

The flight of the buzzard is as well high perfection as is possible to find. In fact, he might be called the most perfect aeroplane in existence. To see him soaring between the bare hills, with a vast green fertile valley below him and with the spring sun lighting up his brown plumage as he slowly sails around with outspread pinions is a sight never to be forgotten.

The buzzard usually chooses a ledge on a cliff for an eyrie, but in certain parts of Wales there are a few well used nests in trees, and as they are generally used by some bird of prey each season they grow to an enormous size. The buzzard does not, as a rule, use the same nest two consecutive seasons, but returns to it the third, and after that allows another season to elapse before occupying it again.

Two nests are often constructed in one dingle, and an amusing incident happened a few years ago in one of these places. The hen laid one egg in each nest, and as it was quite impossible for her to sit on both at once, we did her a good turn by placing one of these eggs in the nest with its companion. The result of our kindness was that a collector passed by about two hours afterward and put both eggs in his collecting box.

When I thought the matter over I came to the conclusion that that old buzzard was not half such a fool as we took her to be, and if we had left the eggs as we found them the bird might have had a chance of rearing one youngster.—Country Life.

A STRANGE REVERSAL.

Napoleon and Wellington and an Exchange of Residences.

In the days before the Suez canal was opened to the world St. Helena was a frequent port of call for British vessels bound to and from India and the far east. This custom, explains Harper's Weekly, was caused by the need of obtaining supplies for the long voyage, and it was therefore for this reason that the ship which on one occasion bore the Duke of Wellington, then Sir Arthur Wellesley, returning to England from India, touched at the island. The great commander spent one night at Jamestown at the house of a Mr. Balcom.

Ten years later Napoleon Bonaparte landed to begin his six years of exile and was assigned to the same room that his conqueror at Waterloo had occupied. This coincidence came to the knowledge of the duke at Paris during its occupation by the allied forces, and he dispatched the following letter to the British officer then in command at St. Helena:

"I am very much obliged to you for Mr. Simpson's book, which I will read when I have a moment's leisure. I am glad you have taken the command at St. Helena, upon which I congratulate you. You may tell 'Bony' that I find his apartments at the Elisee Bourbon very convenient and that I hope he likes mine at Mr. Balcom's. It is a droll enough sequel to the affairs of Europe that we should change places of residence."

His Quick Wit Saved Him.

An ancestor of the great Tolstoy was an officer in the Russian army and a great mimic. One day he was impersonating the Emperor Paul to a group of his friends when Paul himself entered and for some moments looked on unperceived at the antics of the young man. Tolstoy finally turned and, beholding the emperor, bowed his head and was silent.

"Go on, sir," said Paul. "Continue the performance."

The young man hesitated a moment, and then, folding his arms and imitating every gesture and intonation of his sovereign, he said:

"Tolstoy, you deserve to be degraded, but I remember the thoughtfulness of youth, and you are pardoned."

The czar smiled slightly at this speech.

"Well, be it so," he said.

Willing to Pay.

When the British square at the battle of Abu Klea, in the Nubian desert, was penetrated by the dervishes one of them attempted to spur a gunner who was in the act of ramming home a charge. The Briton brained the Sudanese, but the rammer head split on the man's hard skull. Next day the gunner was sent for. Mistaking the reason and knowing from experience that soldiers are charged for government property which they break, he led off: "Please, sir, I'm very sorry I broke the rammer, but I never thought the fellow's head could be so hard. I'll pay for the rammer so as to bear no more of the case."

Obedient.

"You bet I do," answered the precocious five-year-old, "and so does papa."

A King's Trick.

King Gustavus III. of Sweden had been frequently invited to the little court of Schwerin. In 1783 he paid a visit to Germany, and as soon as the Duchess of Mecklenburg heard of his approach she prepared files in his honor. But Gustavus, who disdained the petty courts of the small rulers, sent two of his attendants—a page named Peyron and Desvoignes, a valet who had formerly been an actor—to be entertained by the duchess. The two personated the king and his minister, Baron Sparre, and sustained the characters throughout. They accepted as their due all the homage meant for their master, danced with the Mecklenburg ladies who were presented to them, and Peyron went so far as to ask one of the ladies for her portrait. Meantime Gustavus was enjoying himself elsewhere in secret.

Richmond Castle.

Richmond castle was originally one of the strongest of Norman keeps. It was probably founded by Alan Rufus, one of the sons of the Duke of Brittany, who took a prominent part in the suppression of the Saxons. At a later age the castle passed into the possession of Edmund Tudor, who married Margaret Beaufort and became the father of Henry VII. Henry was born Earl of Richmond, and he bestowed the title upon the magnificent palace which when King of England he built upon the banks of the Thames. Thus the Richmond beloved of cockneys has a comparatively modern origin. The curfew, by the way, is still rung from the tower of Richmond castle at 6 a. m. and 8 p. m., a custom "that has continued ever since the time of William the Conqueror."—London Globe.

Game in Manchuria.

The long haired tiger is found throughout Manchuria wherever there is hilly country, but is never found on the plains. It is extremely difficult to bag and is by no means numerous. In addition to tiger the following game may be found in Manchuria: Bear (black and brown), wapiti, Sikra deer (two species), roe deer, serow, wild pig, leopard and lynx. All, however, are scarce and hard to bag, with the exception of roe deer and pig.—London Field.

It All Depends.

Teacher—Now, boys, here's a little example in mental arithmetic. How old would a person be who was born in 1875? Pupil—Please, teacher, was it a man or a woman?—London Gentlewoman.

Papa Was Seen.

She—You will ask papa, will you not, or must I? He—Oh, I have seen him. Fact is, he made the suggestion that it was about time for me to propose.

Party's Fate on One Vote.

Instances are common enough in elections when a single vote turns the scale, but for that vote to decide not only the fate of a candidate, but of a party as well, is rare. Yet a majority of one in parliament, which may logically depend on a majority of one in the country, has worked some of the most momentous results possible. The classical example is the act of union of 1709, certainly among the largest, most important and most remarkable changes ever accomplished by a legislative body. One hundred and six voted for it and 105 against. Then a majority of one carried the great reform bill in 1832.

Majorities only a little bigger have again and again been responsible for far-reaching consequences. A majority of five threw out the Melbourne government in 1829. By the same figure Lord John Russell's government was defeated in 1866. Gladstone went out of office in 1873 because he lacked three votes, and the public education act, one of the most important ever passed, was placed on the statute book by a majority of two.—London Chronicle.

Wild Dogs of Asia.

The whole tribe of wild dogs, which in closely allied forms are to be found in the wildest jungles and woods of

Asia, from the Himalayas to Ceylon and from China to the Taurus—unless the "golden wolves" of the Roman empire are now extinct in the forests of Asia Minor—show an individual and corporate courage which entitles them to a high place among the most daring of wild creatures. The "red dogs," to give them their most characteristic name, are neither large in size nor do they assemble in large packs. Those which have been from time to time measured and described seem to average some three feet in length from the nose to the root of the tail. The pack seldom numbers more than nine or ten, yet there is sufficient evidence that they are willing and able to destroy any creature that inhabits the jungle, except the adult elephant and perhaps the rhinoceros, creatures whose great size and leathery hide make them almost invulnerable to such enemies as dogs.—London Spectator.

London's Big Ben.

Why is the large bell in the tower of the house of parliament in London called Big Ben? The average Londoner himself seems to have no idea how it got its name. When the building was designed Sir Benjamin Hall had a great deal to do with carrying out the plans of the architects, being high commissioner of public works, and his coworkers appreciated the fact that to him the city of London was largely indebted. So when the question came up in parliament as to the name of the enormous bell that was to be hung in the tower a member shouted, "Why not call it Big Ben?" This suggestion was received with much applause as well as with roars of laughter, for Sir Benjamin was an enormous man, both in height and girth, and had often been called Big Ben. From that day on the bell whose peal every Londoner knows has been known only as Big Ben.—Harper's Weekly.

A Custom of the Balkans.

He or she who enters a house for the first time is supposed in the Balkan countries to bring it good or bad luck for the whole twelvemonth. This belief gives rise to a curious observance. The visitor before crossing the threshold picks up a stone (token of strength) or a green twig (token of health and fruitfulness) and lays it on the hearth. He also brings with him some grains of salt, which he casts into the flames and then, squatting by the fireside, wishes his hosts "a prosperous year, a plentiful crop and many blessings." Then as the grains of salt burst and crackle in the fire he utters the following quaint formula: "As I am sitting, even so may sit the hen and warm the eggs. As this salt splits, even so may split the eggs of the clucking hen and the chickens come forth."

MATHEMATICS.

Used to Locate an Aerolite That No One Had Ever Seen.

Arithmetic, algebra and trigonometry are not romantic, but they may accomplish things which greatly impress the imagination. By means of them a professor at Yale university found a few years ago an aerolite that no one had ever seen.

It appears that a photographer in Ansonia, Conn., was occupied in taking pictures by the aid of a telescope of a comet which was invisible to the naked eye. When his negatives were developed one of them revealed the fact of a meteor. It was too small an object to attract the attention of the unaided eyes, but its line on the photograph indicated that it must have come to the earth.

The picture was shown to an astronomical professor at Yale. Ascertaining the point of observation and reckoning with the aid of the data which the photograph itself supplied, he made a calculation which proved that the meteor must have fallen in the neighborhood of a reservoir some two miles north of Danbury, Conn. There the aerolite was found in the very place indicated by the calculation. It was oval in form, measured fifteen and a half inches in length, seven and a half inches in diameter and weighed twenty-six pounds. It was sent to the museum of Yale university, where it serves not only as an illustration of the nature of the vagrant bodies of the skies, but testifies also to the wonders of calculation which it is possible for mathematical science to accomplish.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

DROPPING ASLEEP.

The Way Mother Nature Charms Away Our Consciousness.

How do we go to sleep? How does Mother Nature charm away our consciousness? First of all she throws her spell on those centers of our bodies that preside over the muscular system, causing one group of muscles after another gradually to collapse. Thereafter various powers of mind succumb in regular order. First we lose attention and judgment, then memory goes, and imagination wanders away in reveries of its own. Ideas of time and space cease to control thought as gentle sleep, the nurse of our life, draws nearer. Then comes the turn of the special senses, beginning with sight. Eyelids close, and eyeballs turn upward and inward, as if to shut out all light, the pupils contracting more and more as slumber steals over us.

The turn of the ears comes; the power of hearing fades away. The heart beats and breath is drawn more and more slowly. The heart beats from ten to twenty times less frequently each minute, or 5,000 times less during the night, while breathing is not only slower but much more shallow than during waking hours. Temperature falls by perhaps 2 degrees, and the body loses three times less heat than when awake. And so at last sleep covers a man all over—sleep that shuts up sorrow's eye.—London Express.

Enthusiasm.

The organist sent a little boy to inquire of the minister what the first hymn would be. "Tell her," said the minister. "I would like 'Carol, Brothers, Carol!'"

The little boy thought he said "Howl, Brothers, Howl!" and told the organist that the minister's selection was "Tell, Brothers, Yell!"—New York Times.
